

Introducing 15-Year-Old Singer/Songwriter Lewis Blissett

Listen To "Sick Thoughts" Now !!

In a sea of YouTube covers, 15-year-old Lewis Blissett's pure and effortless voice cuts through the rest. The English teenager's YouTube covers of pop stars including Rihanna, Ariana Grande and Billie Eilish have earned heaps of praise and co-signs from the artists themselves. With millions of followers across his socials, his sound and style has been compared to Justin Bieber and a young Justin Timberlake. Like many kids his age right now, Lewis speaks publicly on a new age fluidity of gender and sexuality and has very quickly become a relatable figure for a generation. He's had to cope with dysfunctional family life and online bullying. Music became his therapy and his escape, pouring himself into dark alt pop tracks and emotional ballads about relationships, loss and finding himself.

Confronting bullying head-on, Blissett gives his generation an anthem in the form of “Sick Thoughts.” Be on the lookout for the music video soon. He fittingly prefaced it with statement-making cover art, turning hate comments a la “Is he gay or a girl?”, “you twat u need to eat more” and “you will never be an actual artist” into fuel for this self-positive anthem. The excitement from fans actually urged an earlier release for this single. Lewis dropped two teasers on Instagram and ignited over 380k views ! At his fans request, the drop date moved up to today.
