ABOUT ††† (CROSSES):

††† immersive, cinematic soundscapes are rich with emotion, empathy, and depth that can only be the result of a truly intimate collaboration. Credit for this intensity goes to the decades-long friendship between principal members Chino Moreno and Shaun Lopez, childhood friends who formed the band in 2011. Over the years, ††† have evolved into a vibrant collision of sounds, styles, and eras, while foregrounding their own sense of drama, strength, and severity. The upcoming second ††† full-length, Goodnight, God Bless, I Love You, Delete., is full of these personal touchstones and diverse interests. Goodnight, God Bless, I Love You., Delete. is the first ††† album since the band unexpectedly re-emerged at the end of 2020 with a cover of Cause and Effect's "The Beginning of the End." That was followed exactly a year later by another surprise song, an electro-pop take on Q Lazzarus' "Goodbye Horses." Sufficiently back in a groove, ††† released a series of singles that culminated in 2022's PERMANENT.RADIANT EP and a remixed version of that EP titled PERMANENT.RADIANT.REMIXED. The band also discovered new approaches to production and lyrics on the forthcoming album that resist any temptation to let the past dictate their future—musically, lyrically, and personally.
