Saweetie has remained a constant presence in the hip-hop world since her 2017 breakout “Icy Girl.” This year alone, the “My Type” rapper has collaborated with fellow Bay Area native P-Lo on “Do It for the Bay” and even taken her voice overseas with “Khutti,” a joint effort with Punjabi artist Diljit Dosanjh. Earlier this month, she released the compilation EP Pretty Hu$tler Mix complete with recent solo single “Richtivités.”

Just a few weeks after dropping Pretty Hu$tler Mix, Saweetie is continuing her release streak with her new single “Nani.” The pop-tinged track arrives just as people get ready to hit the beach this summer, making it a natural fit for sunny day playlists. “Nani’ isn’t just a track; it’s the soundtrack to a good time,” she said in a press release for the song. “This track [definitely] gives main character energy! This single has been a labor of love, and it’s just the beginning. I’ve been working on this new music for a while, and I’m excited to share more of this journey with you.”
