MORE MUSIC COMING SOON

January 31, 2025 (Los Angeles, CA) – Opening up a sonic world without comparison, rising rap surrealist B.U.G Antman presents the psychedelically stunning music video for his new single "Make Sense" out now via Warner Records. Watch HERE. Listen HERE.

He draws viewers into a colorful alternate reality through this vibrant visual. Sitting in the backseat of a classic car, he cruises down a bright road flanked by gigantic sunflowers. The video intercuts moments in the neighborhood with sweeping shots of UFOs descending upon a beach, "bouquet-headed" skateboarders sliding down the sidewalk, and a pianist donning a paper bag over his face. A final vignette zooms out on an old-school handmade model, leaving a hint at the truth....B.U.G Antman could very well be a puppet master pulling the strings in the world and determining its future.

"Make Sense" transfixed tastemakers upon its arrival last week. Billboard named it among "R&B/Hip-Hop Fresh Picks of the Week." VIBE plugged it on "New Hip-Hop To Ride Out To." BET highlighted the single in their new music roundup. Dirty Glove Bastard professed, "The psychedelic track showcases his magnetic charisma and innovative artistry."

"Make Sense" paves the way for more from the culture's most fearlessly innovative outlier. Get ready to let B.U.G Antman open up your mind in 2025.

ABOUT B.U.G ANTMAN:

B.U.G Antman won't let anyone outwork him. Recently, the 24-year-old rapper from Atlanta has been going all in, developing an impressive portfolio of independent singles like "Over Knees" and "Phone On Private," which showcase his blend of straight-ahead rap bars with adventurous vocal inflections. Antman and his rapidly growing fanbase — which he lovingly calls his "colony" — are looking toward the future and aiming to leave a mark. The young B.U.G got his name because he preferred being outside catching critters to being parked on a couch playing video games. In high school, he discovered Lil Wayne and became obsessed with rap. After graduating, he decided to dedicate all his energy to making his own music. From 2020 through the beginning of 2024, he worked to establish his presence in Atlanta and online. Soon, the young MC began to establish his signature sound. He released music at a rapid clip, creating every day but growing far more selective with what he put into the world. Those early singles and the Bakkwoods-produced Bug EP drew the attention of Terrence "Snake" Hawkins, Veeze's label partner and manager, who implored Warner to ink B.U.G as soon as possible. Now, B.U.G Antman is itching to prove that he's ready to deliver his most thrilling album to date. And that he's in this for the long haul: "I am not letting this soak in. I'm just getting started."
