September 13th (Los Angeles, CA) - Sacramento artist Hobo Johnson has released his hotly anticipated second studio album The Fall of Hobo Johnson via Reprise Records / Warner Records. It's the follow-up to his debut album The Rise of Hobo Johnson, which marked the arrival of one of the most innovative rising new artists on the scene making music in a class of his own. Hobo Johnson also unveils a video for the standout "Mover Awayer" from the new album. Watch HERE.

The Fall of Hobo Johnson follows a string of tracks and compelling visuals released from the project including the gigantic lead single "Typical Story" (produced by Jason Evigan), of which NPR said "has a ridiculously catchy chorus," and has been streamed over 10 million times across platforms. Additional previously released tracks include "Uglykid" and "Subaru Crosstrek XV" (produced by Ryan Lewis) from the album. Hobo also has played Bonnaroo, Lollapalooza and both Reading and Leeds Festivals in the UK. Additionally, he graced the stage on Late Night With Seth Meyers earlier this summer with a momentous performance of "Typical Story."

With a metaphorical title, The Fall of Hobo Johnson is about all of the things that Hobo has gone through from living out of his '94 Toyota Corolla to the explosion of his music leading him to living the life of a working musician. Namely, a lot of falling: falling in love, falling out of it and falling apart when it was over. He's still blurring the line between singer and rapper and poet. A lot of what you hear on the album came straight from his laptop, the same as everything he's released so far. But it's Hobo on a whole new level. Lyrically he's evolved from the hyper-personal point of view of his earlier work to talking about more universal topics like politics, history and the future.

NME attests "as a newly appointed member of the proudly unconventional pop stars club, his latest body work is a worthy representation of who he is: a talented and undeniably funny underdog with an addictive persona."

Hobo Johnson and his band The Lovemakers will be hitting the road this fall on The Fall Tour of Hobo Johnson, starting October 9th in Seattle, WA. Get tickets HERE. In addition to the tour, Hobo will be performing at Voodoo Festival in New Orleans (full dates below).

ABOUT HOBO JOHNSON:

Hailing from Sacramento, CA, artist Frank Lopes, who cultivated the moniker Hobo Johnson after being kicked out of his parents' house and left to live in his '94 Corolla, is propelling his way to the top. The half Azorean Portuguese, quarter Mexican and Native American vocalist built a grassroots following via viral homegrown style videos showcasing his singularity; an amalgamation of spoken word poetry, punk, folk and rap backed by his band The Lovemakers. Hobo's momentum reached a tipping point after gaining feverish interest through his "Peach Scone" video entry in NPR's "Tiny Desk" Contest, which went viral (26 million streams to date) despite not winning. Bursting with unadulterated sincerity, his genre-defying sound feels akin to musical anomalies of the past and future. 2017 saw Hobo Johnson's self-released debut album, The Rise of Hobo Johnson, selling out shows everywhere and amassing over 115 million cumulative U.S. streams. Hobo Johnson's impact only continues to grow with the arrival of his sophomore album, The Fall if Hobo Johnson, and lead single "Typical Story."
