“As a vocalist, he carries a Khalid-slash-Frank Ocean by way of the Weeknd sensibility; lyrically he displays vulnerability by putting himself and his personal affairs out there.” –Exclaim!

“Of Age’ is also stunning, explosive, and at times cataclysmic... In an era where people are vying for playlist placements and leaving the notion of the completed project to the wayside, Love crafts a holistic and moving experience with ‘Of Age.’” –DJ Booth

“a gifted songwriter with an ear for complex, jazzy harmony and unexpected grooves.” –Noisy

“Count On You’... polished and instantly accessible... Love Mansuy wears his heart on his sleeve and arrives with a compelling, fully formed sound and message” –Pigeons and Planes

July 17, 2020 (Los Angeles, CA) – Today, Montreal-born, New Jersey-raised artist Love Mansuy (his birth given name; pronounced “mon-swee”) has returned with a sonically disparate new single titled “I’ll Be There” featuring his son Carter Mansuy. “I’ll Be There” is the first new piece of music since the release of Love’s heart-wrenching EP Of Age, which features Count On You, the EP’s single that was remixed by the one and only Lil Wayne. “I’ll Be There” was originally written as a reflection of Love’s commitment to being there for his 3-year-old son and features an accompanying video directed by Love’s childhood friend Quran Squires. For the visual, Love and Co. choose to reflect on not only the need for black men to show up for their sons, but the need for black men to be there for black women.

Journalist John Hoyland described the theory in which “people tend to gravitate towards areas of work that fit their names” as Normative Determinism. Love Mansuy’s proof of theory lies within his songwriting craft. The 27-year-old has spent his entire life in excavation mode, digging up emotions and putting them under a sonic microscope in order to get closer to an understanding of what “love” really is.

Last fall, the singer released his EP Of Age, which is a window into a soul struggling with the realities of bringing life into the world and committing to the process of creating a family. In April, he appeared on Ryan Hemsworth’s new single “New Life.” And as recently as this month, Love performed on Black Power Live and appeared on Rinse.FM to talk about “I’ll Be There.” This new single will be followed by many this upcoming year.
