The Canadian R&B duo is reportedly working on a new album slated for release sometime this year.

Following the success of their April release "Waves of Blue," Majid Jordan returns with another single. The OVO Sound R&B duo are said to be working on an album that's slated for release sometime this year, but for now, they're keeping details regarding that project close to the chest. On Friday (June 18), they delivered "Been Through That," a track that they say is "perfect to dance to in warm weather and sunshine."

"We made it so that we could bring people back together as the world opens up after the pandemic. People have been through so much over these two years and we wanted to give them something to sing along to together," the pair shared in a joint statement.
